

Dear FCC: I don't condone Enhanced Single Side Band useage.
But, this is a very bad idea to limit the bandwidth. Where will it stop? Just because a "FEW" bad apples are doing this, does not mean that new restrictions need to be imposed. It infringes upon the Amateur Radio Operators History and Roots of basic experimentation. I see this leading to other forms of needless restrictions and where will it all end? With the extinction of the hobby, is where it will end. Again this is a very bad idea. And again I don't use enhanced SSB myself. I think the few operators that are messing things up can be dealt with through warning letters and other methods from your FCC enforcement bureau.

David L. Mauldin (WA6TWJ)
P.O. Box 631
Rough and Ready, CA. USA.